

Ebook Shelf Sample

A generated PDF for testing

page 1

Chapter 2

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Chapter 3

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Chapter 4

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

Chapter 5

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

Chapter 6

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

Chapter 7

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

Chapter 8

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Chapter 9

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Chapter 10

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

Chapter 11

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

Chapter 12

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

Chapter 13

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

Chapter 14

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.

Books are a uniquely portable magic, a door into another mind and another time.

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body; it sharpens and it strengthens.

There is no friend as loyal as a book, no counsel so patient, no voice so lasting.

The world is full of magical things patiently waiting for our wits to grow sharper.

To learn to read is to light a fire; every syllable that is spelled out is a spark.

A reader lives a thousand lives before he dies. The man who never reads lives only one.